

Execution of Wirz.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The execution of Henry Wirz, which took place at half past 10 o'clock this morning, possessed very little exciting interest, and was preceded by no remarkable incidents. The prisoner spent the most of the night in slumber, first receiving his spiritual adviser at six o'clock this morning. After partaking of a slight meal, he spent the rest of the morning in writing letters. The last one he wrote was to his counsel, thanking him for his kindness, and begging him to do all he could for his family. He also wrote his autograph for a curiosity seeker, adding to it his rank in the rebel army. He had a brief interview with Captain Winder, confined in the same prison, and who is a son of the rebel General Winder who had charge of rebel prisons.

At a few minutes after 10, accompanied by two priests, and a guard of soldiers, the prisoner appeared in the prison yard, dressed in a robe of glazed black cotton. His lip was firm, his face bright with a slight smile upon it, and he seemed to retain full self-possession as he conversed in a low tone with his religious counsellors. His wounded arm was doubled up at his side in a sling. He walked up the scaffold with an erect step, and took his position on the trap door. On looking at his black robe he said to Father Boyle that it would soon be a white one.

It took some 15 minutes to pinion his arms, during all of which time he remained very calm. He stated to Major Russell, the Provost Marshal, that he did not desire to make any public remarks. The Major commiserated his situation, and said that he was only obeying orders in executing him. Wirz replied that he knew he was obeying orders—that he too was a soldier, and was about to be hung for obeying orders. To his spiritual advisers, who asked him for a confession, he repeatedly replied that he had none to make; that he died an innocent man.

Maj. Russell then read the charges and specifications on which he was convicted, and the approval of the sentence by the President. During one portion of the reading Wirz shook his head and smiled. As soon as the reading was finished, the black cap was drawn over his face, and a military detective drew the bolt to the trap door, which fell, leaving Wirz dangling in the air. His neck was broken by the fall, though he writhed and drew himself up for several minutes. In twenty minutes he was cut down and placed in the prison hospital, where the usual medical examination took place. The only demonstration made was that of an exultant shout from the crowd on the tops of the houses outside of the prison walls.

Wirz's counsel was with the President endeavoring to secure his reprieve even in point of time after he was hung. The President, however, deemed the grounds presented insufficient, and the counsel left the White House to be greeted in the streets with the news of the execution.

It has been asserted to-day that during Wirz's imprisonment, an attempt was made by his wife to poison him. During her last interview, she kissed him, as usual, when they parted, and, at the same time, deposited in his mouth a very small vial containing arsenic. This was quickly detected by Gen. Baker, who was present, and he seized Wirz by the throat, compelling him to spit out the article. It was kept a secret at the time, in order to find out who furnished Wirz's wife the poison.—Gen. Baker relates these details of this plot, which seems to leave no doubt of its truth.

VISIT TO THE PRESIDENT OF A DELEGATION OF LADIES.

His Excellency the President gave audience yesterday to a numerous delegation of ladies from Baltimore, deputed to present a petition signed by 15,000 ladies, seeking the Executive clemency in behalf of Jefferson Davis. Mrs. Coleman, daughter of the late lamented John J. Crittenden, addressed the President in feeling and appropriate terms, to which he responded in a most felicitous manner, regretting that public policy prevented his yielding to their persuasive and touching argument.

The interview was a protracted one and of the most agreeable character, and the fair petitioners left the city, carrying with them the most pleasurable impressions of the President.

In declining, the President regretted that the national character of the question restrained all private sympathy which they might have awakened in him, and made the important statement that complete arrangements have been made for the early legal trial of Mr. Davis, according to the laws of the land.—[Nat. PROSPECTUS

OF THE

TURF, FIELD AND FARM.

BEHAVING THAT THE INTERESTS of the American people demand a first-class weekly Journal, devoted exclusively to the sport of the turf and field, and to agricultural and literary pursuits, we have made arrangements to publish such a paper. With the return of peace to our land, war and its exciting issues will no longer engross the attention, and form the chief topic of discussion. The people will return with new vigor to the sports of the field and turf, to the breeding of fine stock, and the development of the resources of the country. The want of a journal devoted to the best interests of the whole country was never so severely felt as now. To supply this want we propose to establish the Turf, Field and Farm.

We embark in an enterprise requiring much labor and expense; but we believe the people will sustain us in it. Our facilities for publishing a first-class sporting and literary journal are not confined to the United States. Our long connection with the turf and stock associations of the country, warrant us in this boldly stating this fact. It shall be our earnest endeavor to publish a paper that will interest the general reader. Politics will be excluded from its columns, as we have no desire to indulge in bitter aspersions and to engage in heated discussions. The turf will receive especial attention, and it will form one of the leading features of the paper. We have made arrangements to secure correspondents from every State which take pride in encouraging this noble sport. The breeding and raising of fine stock will also receive especial attention. The horse, the noblest of animal creation, for years has been our study, and we are prepared to treat the matter in a manner that will challenge the criticism of the public.

To promote the interests of the farm will be another of our chief endeavors. The subject of agriculture is of vital interest to the American people, recovering as they are from the effects of a long and desolating war. Neglected fields and abandoned plantations must again be made to team with life and bloom with the fruits of the soil. None of us are so wise but that we may require instruction, and by unceasing effort we hope to make this department valuable and interesting.

No paper to the general reader would be complete without a literary department, and it is not our intention to overlook this important feature. Selections from the ablest writers in the country, and contributions from some of the most ready and scholarly pens of the day, will serve to enrich our columns.

Believing that the perpetuation of the principles upon which our Government is founded depends upon the general diffusion of knowledge, we shall labor for the advancement of the cause of education.

To interest all every paper must assign a column or more to the recording of important events transpiring in our midst; therefore we shall devote a small space to the current news of the day. But our aim is to establish a first-class journal devoted to the best interests of the country; a paper devoted to the warmly welcomed by the gentlemen of the turf, a paper that will prove valuable to those who take delight in the breeding of fine stock; a paper that will be hailed as a welcome visitor by the farmer, one that will be read with pleasure in the counting-room, in the office, in the railroad car, and by the fireside. To sustain us in our effort, we appeal to the patronage of the American people, and we believe that the appeal will not be in vain. No pains or expense will be spared to make the Turf, Field and Farm worthy of the most generous support.

WAVERLY MAGAZINE,

FOR

Family Instruction and Amusement,

Edited by Moses A. Dow.

THIS paper is the largest weekly ever published in this country. Its contents are such as will be approved in the most fastidious circles—nothing immoral being admitted into its pages. It will furnish as much reading matter as almost any one can find time to peruse, consisting of tales, history, biography, together with music and poetry. The paper contains no extra sentiments, and is free from all politics or religion, but it is characterized by a high moral tone. It circulates all over the country, from Maine to California.

TERMS—The Waverly Magazine is published weekly, by Moses A. Dow, No. 5, East street, Boston, Mass. Two editions are printed, one on fine paper, for periodical dealers, at 15 cents a copy, and an edition for mail subscribers, (on a cheap paper, so as to come within the low postage law.)

All additions to the clubs at the same rates. All money received will be credited according to the above terms. Paper stopped when the last number paid for is sent. No clubs taken for less than three months.

A new volume commences every July and January. But if a person commences at any number in a volume and pays for six months, he will have a complete book, with a title page.

When a subscriber orders a renewal of his subscription, he should tell us what was the last number he received, then we shall know what number to renew at without hunting over our books. Otherwise we shall begin when the money is received.

Persons writing for the paper, must write their name, post office, county and State, very distinctly. Those who wish their paper changed, should tell where it has previously been sent. Postage on this paper is twenty cents a year, payable in advance at the office where taken out.

Clubs must always be sent at one time to get the benefit of the low price. We cannot send them at the club price unless received altogether, as it is too much trouble to look over our books, or keep an account with each one getting them up.

MONTHLY PARTS.—$6 a year, in all cases. Any one sending us six dollars can have the Weekly Waverly Magazine, and either of the following works for one year by mail: Peterson's Ladies' Magazine, Godey's Lady's Book, Ladies' Gazette of Fashion.

For seven dollars we will send the Waverly Magazine, and either Harper's Magazine or the Atlantic Monthly, one year.

All letters concerning the paper must be addressed to the publisher.

THE WAY TO SUBSCRIBE.—The proper mode to subscribe for a paper is to enclose the money in a letter and address the publisher direct, giving individual name, with the post office, county and State very plainly written, as postmarks are often illegible.
